Don't Stop Talking
You may have spoken about underage drinking with your child, but it’s important to keep talking about it as he/she grows up to make sure he/she knows how you feel.

- Attending a professional sporting event where alcohol is present may give you a chance to remind your child how you feel about underage drinking.

- Talking about alcohol in a casual setting, like a picnic, may help open a line of communication between you and your child.

- Family vacations or outings can give you a chance to show your child fun alternatives to underage drinking.

- Take time to explain the laws and your expectations regarding alcohol – it’s your role!
